

Landscape of the Mind

Facilitator Training Course

27 & 28 March 2012

The Complexity Research Programme at the London School of Economics is pleased to be hosting the first Facilitator Training Course in Landscape of the Mind (LoM).

Few tools and techniques currently in use for coaching, management development and OD, have been designed specifically for the distinctive challenges facing organisations today: enhancing effectiveness in uncertainty, ambiguity and turbulent continuous change. Even fewer have been tried and tested within an academic research programme such as ours.

Intended for coaches, educators, trainers and consultants, this 2-day course builds on previous events at LSE, to offer accreditation as a Facilitator of Landscape of the Mind.

LoM is an innovative approach that works with the inner complexity of human beings, to provide practical (and well documented) benefits to individuals and organisations.

By the end of the course, participants will:

- Have a copy of, and feedback on, their own First Level LoM profiles (with the option of Depth Level profiling also available)
- Have a good overview of LoM and its applications within organisations
- Know how to relate LoM to their own work/specialisation; so as to add value for clients
- Know how to use the LoM film for both delivery and your own marketing purposes
- Be familiar with case studies and real world examples of its use, including the evidence supporting LoM, as well as neuro-cognitive findings.

For further details contact info@innerskills.co.uk

Information and a booking form on www.innerskills.co.uk